

The European Border and Coast Guard

Agency's reply

110. One of the most significant weaknesses of the return data collection at Frontex related to the indicator on number of return decisions, which are often issued several times to the same person to be returned. The weakness was corrected by establishing another indicator on the number of persons having received return orders on a monthly basis. The new indicator allows for a better calculation of the effective returns per issued decision however it is not reported by each Member State.